Novellus Systems announced that it has delivered the first complete Linux Professional Institute (LPI) certification offered on a printed circuit board, which is based on our Elite technology. "With LPI certification, we're empowering our global developer community with industry-leading Linux certifications for production-quality embedded applications. We're the only organization offering Linux certifications in printed circuit board (PCB) packages that can be produced in volume and easily integrated into your design flow," said Peter Dowd, SVP of Corporate Strategy at Novellus Systems. Novellus Systems uniquely offers the broadest range of printed circuit board (PCB) packages, which can be filled with either a bare footprint or are pre-filled with our Linux certified software stacks. The Novellus Elite PCB packages are certified by organizations such as LPI, DO-254, and UL. Additionally, the Elite Linux certifications are validated by a number of security and OS distros, including Ubuntu and Fedora. Novellus Systems leverages its expertise in Linux certifications and the large-scale availability of its Elite packages.
